

Biography:

Renan Kazazoglu is a final year PhD student carrying out his research in the Applied DSP & VLSI Research Group in the University of Westminster. The ADVRG specialise in the design of low power high speed ASICs, with receiver architectures for GNSS applications being of particular interest, which is the area of focus for his work.