

Brief bio for Peter Duffett-Smith

Peter Duffett-Smith was the founder of Cambridge Positioning Systems and held positions as its Chief Technical Officer and Chief Scientific Officer. He is currently a Reader in Experimental Radio Physics at the Cavendish Laboratory, University of Cambridge. His PhD was in Radio Astronomy and, with others, he is the inventor of the Matrix positioning method and Enhanced GPS technologies. He is also a Consultant for the GPS Group at Cambridge Silicon Radio.

